

have my client's mother charged on January 27th, 2013; correct?

A. That's not true.

Q. You called the police to the matrimonial home?

A. I have the video. I give it to the Court. She 5 came. She insult me. I asked her to leave my house.

Q. I'm not asking about that.

A. And I gave the video what she did.

Q. Right.

A. And I asked her. She didn't leave, and I
10 called the police.

Q. You called the police, and attempted to have her charged; correct?

A. No, I didn't attempt to have to charge. I just want she leaves my house.

Q. Well, you alleged to have given them evidence 15 of an assault, so you weren't just asking them to remove her.
You were trying to have her charged with assault; correct?

A. No, that's not correct.

Q. I see. And you recall the police investigating 20 your claim of being kicked and hit by the mother-in-law. They interviewed you; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You'd agree with me that the police's conclusion as it was written down was: Police did not have 25 evidence that an assault had occurred. So, she was not charged;
correct?

A. I didn't ask them for charge her. I asked them to -- she moves my house.

Q. Well, it appears that you claimed you were 30 kicked and hit by your mother. You just didn't ask...

A. Yes, because I asked...

Q. ...them to leave?
